

Narendra Jana
realm@mykolab.com
+17812235780

My case fall under crimes against humanity the US militarizing forced sex restriction between me and woman of my age. Its goes against biological need so its crimes against humanity.

This falls under their goal of mutilation and disfigurement for the sake of making me unappealing me to the opposite sex. Crimes against humanity. Humans have a biological (innate) need for sex; its part of human biological cycle. If you were restricted (key word is restricted, force restricted; in my case violently force restricted) from it than its a crime. They couldn't cover it up in their imagination that I wasnt force restricted by their idea. It hurts me and the woman involved, because they want to get to know me in a close intersonal level and I am disallowed as a US government dictated public policy.

MS from neurotoxicology = physical and intellectual disfigurement = lack of social relations due to undesirability.

I didn't know of their idea then from 2007 to 2017. In my case I was physically restricted from woman to perpetuate a lack of close interpersonal relationships so sex wwouldnt happen (I wasn't allowed to hang out with them). I was restricted to not make friends with females in general. Its with intent by the US army or a government entity. I was put in college locations where the dorms were devoid of females for 4 years in college. I was expected to sleep with hookers and escorts (which never happened) as a way of sexual congress. The only way that I could participate in sex according to the US is if I paid for it.

In University my study abroad programs were more obvious in how they physically separated me by separating me from females. My apartment was separated from females in the program. No contact exchange between me and the female participants of the program was apparently allowed by the US; preventing relationships. This was in Madrid, Spain. Not exchanging contact information to prevent communication was a way of avoiding communication then. The students woud literally be forced to run from my immediate position to avoid me.

In my second study abroad program in Leeds, England in was physically isolated from those in my age group and females in general. The program had the same format of not exchanging contact information with people of the opposite sex and those my own age. The dorms were decrepit as well relative to the cost expenditure of the program; which indicated some sort of invectiveness in physical isolation.

US responded "we made it too "obvious" or separating woman from me by and then places devoid of females for 8 years. And in my study abroad programs the females ere restricted to interact with me. All the woman liked me but I hung out with them but I wasn't allowed to go to their places of living even thought they had a desire for me to be there. They always wanted me to be thre but I was restricted to go there.

They couldnt cover it up in their imagination as well, it became a crime against psychology when they tried to cover it up.

The US Army often posts up salacious material on the internet as a mockery of this particular crime.